DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Katto US # 4,525,660.

With respect to above claims, Katto teaches an inverter control apparatus and shows in Fig. 5:

- An induction motor 2;
- An inverter circuitry having variable-voltage and variable-frequency conversion to drive the induction motor 2 at a variable speed;
- A current detector 4 detecting the inverter current output to the motor 2;
- A first current level setting unit 5 for setting a current level for protecting the elements of the main inverter circuitry from the overcurrents;
- A second current level setting unit 7 which sets a current level to flow at the slip frequency S_m generating the stall torque, in accordance with load characteristics of the induction motor and the voltage/frequency ratio;
- A current level selector 8, which selects the smallest one of the set outputs of the second current level setting unit 7 and the first current level setting unit 5, as in claim 8;

Art Unit: 2837

- A control circuitry 6 which comparing and observing the output of the current detector 4 and the current selected by the level selector 8;
- A drive circuitry 3;
- On the basis of the velocity command the control circuitry 6 determines the on-off signals for the transistors of the inverter portion 12 and subjects the inverter to the variable-voltage and variable-frequency operation through the drive circuitry 3 to provide a voltage and a frequency corresponding to a velocity command. In this way, the induction motor is controlled to rotate at a speed at which an output torque and load torque balance. The inverter output current is thus determined, (see column 1, lines 10-49, column 2, lines 3-26, column 3, lines 25-68, column 4, lines 1-27, 66-68, column 5, lines 1-23).

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-6 are allowed.
4. Claims 11 and 12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter. The prior art made of record in the attached form PTO-892 considered to be pertinent to the submitted application.

However, none of the prior art teaches or suggest in combination:

- A voltage command;

- A reference phase command;
- An integrator arranged to integrate the inverter frequency command to produce a reference phase command;
- A combination of the limitations of claim 12.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
